and writing songs when I was about 10, and started taking guitar lessons when I was 12."

May formed a cover band called Flood shortly after learning to play his different instruments, and formed power-pop group The Rockwells while in high school. He later attended film school at New York University, and also at the University of Mississippi.

"I would call it pop music," said May. May's first album, The Good Feeling Music Of Dent

May & His Magnificent Ukulele was released on Paw Tracks in 2009. His second album Do Things was released in June. May has also released singles online on Forest Family Records under the name of Dent Sweat. His current tour for Do Things is kicking off on Tuesday, Dec. 4, the night before he will perform in Tallahassee. "I like meeting new people, and seeing the city and eating the food," said May. "It's all about the cultural experience. I like seeing new places." May draws inspiration from a number of diverse artists such as Prince, Beyonce, The Zombies, Beck, Three 6 Mafia, David Bowie and The Talking Heads. "I'm inspired by all kinds of stuff," said May. "Everything really." May both records his music and puts on many shows at his home in Oxford, Mississippi. Once home to a Boys and Girls Club, his abode is now the Cats Purring Dude Ranch. When not working at his home, he records music at a friend's rural cabin near a cotton field.
